

USE OF EXPLOSIVES TO BE SAFEGUARDED BY LICENSE SYSTEM

Provisions of War Measure Are Designed To Prevent Destruction of Industries

FINE AND IMPRISONMENT ARE PROVIDED UNDER ACT

Separate Foremen's Licenses Required Where Employes Handle Such Materials

Pending the appointment of an official to handle that class of a war measure passed by the last congress making it an offense for any person in the United States to be in possession of explosives on and after November 15, unless a special license is secured from the federal government showing the purpose for which the explosives are to be used, firms, contractors and others in Honolulu need only keep an inventory of their stocks of explosives, which must be open for inspection at any time, according to a statement made yesterday by United States Attorney S. C. Huber.

Instructions Expected Soon

Mr. Huber could not say when the official would be appointed, but expressed the opinion that instructions would be received from Washington within a very short time. Possibly the United States marshal will be authorized to issue the permits as required by law, was said by a federal official yesterday.

Any who deal in explosives and who do not secure a permit when the local official is appointed, will be at once arrested and may be subjected to a fine up to $5000 or sent to prison for one year. If the circumstances war warrant, the person may be fined $5000 and, in addition, given a one year sentence to prison. The police are not only to look after the enforcement of the law but are also to make thorough investigations of all dynamite outrages and fires in factories and warehouses, according to the law.

Persons apprehended in plots to blow up factories and bridges will be turned over to the authorities for prosecution under federal or state laws. The penalty provided in this federal war measure is merely to cover the illegal possession of explosives.

Licenses To Be Restricted

Only citizens of the United States or of countries friendly to the United States and the allies may so obtain licenses. Contractors, mining companies, quarrymen, and others using large quantities of explosives which are handled by employees may issue licenses to their employees only through those employees holding a license called a foreman's license.

With the strict enforcement of this law, the federal authorities hope to prevent explosives falling into the hands of evil disposed persons and to put a stop to all further dynamite plots.

ADLER MEN KNEW "CONSUL HACKFELD"

Proved They Were From Honolulu By Referring Inquirer To Mr. Paul Isenberg

Further details of the visit to the Cook Islands of some of the members of the Sea Adler crew are contained in a letter received in the recent mail from the south by a Honolulu, the writer being Thomas Duncan, British Resident at Aitutaki. The raiders made a strong effort to make good their claim that they had sailed from Honolulu in their major boat, and talked about Honolulu in a way that almost persuaded the Britishers to take them at their face value.

The letter, dated September 3, which has just reached its addressee, says:

"Dear Mr. — On the 31st of August we had a most mysterious visit from six foreigners in an open motor boat. They came right up to the wharf in their boat, flying no flag. On my interrogating them, a Mr. Van Houten informed me that the boat was named the 'Cecile', and that he had left Honolulu on the 29th of July last in consequence of a bet made in the Dutch Club in Frisco. That he and Mr. Southart, his navigating officer, had come down from San Francisco to Honolulu in a steamer called the 'Vancouver', where he had engaged a crew of four—three of them being Norwegians and the fourth a Dutchman. That he himself was a Norwegian but an American citizen, and that Mr. Southart was an American.

"The bet was for $5000 Stg. that they would not go to the Cook Islands in an open boat, and that he was writing an account of the trip for 'Harrod's Magazine'. That they had hired the boat 'Cecile' from H. Hackfeld & Co., a well known firm in Honolulu. That they called at Papeete and were taken by a French torpedo boat. Some of their crew being able to talk French they had conversed in French and were well received and well treated.

"Said they called at Maupiti Island, close to Borabora, then proceeded to Taratonga, arriving at dark. Saw a steamer close inshore without light, presumably the 'Matai' on the reef, and seeing no lights in the town decided not to go in.

"Visited Atiu Island, well received there and left same day, 27th of August for Aitutaki, arriving here at 11 a. m. on 31st of August. They left the same day at 4:30 p. m. for Honolulu via Malden and Fanning Island for water.

Their Credentials

"When asked by me to produce credentials showing that Honolulu had been their first port of departure, they could produce none. Neither could they produce an American flag, log book, Honolulu newspaper or passport from either Honolulu or Papeete. They stated they had a flag but could not find it, same as regards a log book, but they produced a log book of the schooner 'E. C. Slade', Captain Smith, dated from 31st of May, 1917 to 2nd of June, 1917, voyage from Eureka, California to Sydney, N. S. W.

"They said this log was given to them at Honolulu by H. Hackfeld & Co. as a guide. They referred to Mr. Hackfeld as Consul Hackfeld, and when asked of which country he was consul said Germany. They made very little inquiry as to the war and did not ask for any newspapers.

"They also referred to Mr. Paul Isenberg, who I understand is another well known German in your city. All this appeared most extraordinary, if it is correct.

Boat Small and Wet

"The boat was only twenty-seven feet long, eighteen inches free-board, not decked in, but simply new looking canvas that laced up. Everything in the boat was very wet and she lumbered right up. They told me that two watched while the other four slept. They all looked in good health. I had Mr. Southart and one seaman to lunch whilst Mr. Van Houten had lunch with one of the traders. They bought a few necessities before proceeding on their journey.

"Accounts by last mail are to hand of the German Corpse Factory where glycerine, soap, margarine, pigs' food and measure is made. Oh how horrible and one would think it incredible, still I have in my possession a copy of the advertisement that appeared in the 'Chemical Zeitung' of 18th November 1916, which calls for an engineer free from military obligations, to direct technically and commercially, our factory for the destruction and utilization of dead bodies. 'Amble Therman-shempe Vern. Eckolsheim, Strasburg.'

"Glad to see that America has come in on the sides of the Allies. Yours faithfully,

"THOS. DUNCAN."

CHINESE IS SLASHED

A wicked-looking knife which was half Filipino bolo, was brought to Hawaiian Headquarters yesterday for delivery to the judge advocate as evidence in a cutting case at Schofield Barracks in December 9, when a Chinaman was so badly cut that he had to be taken to the hospital.

The commanding officer's attention was called to a fight in the construction quartermaster's camp of workers, in which three Chinamen had engaged in a scuffle and one was slashed across the face and shoulders. The other participants were said to be Charles H. Lee and Ahn Chu Won.

OFFICIALS EXEMPTED

All United States government officials are exempted from payment of the war tax while on duty, according to instructions received at the federal office yesterday. Freight rates, transportation, telegram and telephone charges will be at the old rate so far as United States government officials are concerned, says the order.

HOMESTEADING IS KRAUSS' SUBJECT

Sympathetic, Encouraging Attitude On Part of Community Needed For Success

The essentials needed for successful homesteading were pointed out by F. G. Krauss, county extension agent for Maui, in a talk before the Ad Club yesterday. Krauss has made a study of the subject and is entitled to speak with authority.

The value of a sympathetic, encouraging attitude on the part of the state and the community was brought out by him. He said that the plantations and firms of Maui had been very helpful to the homesteaders, and that he knew of no single instance where they had hampered the efforts of the small farmers in any way.

The selection of land for homesteading purposes should be carefully made, Krauss said. Its special fitness for different sorts of crops should be determined by actual field experiments carried on in the locality before the tract is opened to the public. Arrangements should also be made whereby no man would receive less than forty acres, which he should be able to increase to eighty acres if he proved a successful farmer and good citizen.

Other methods led to a waste of government land, Krauss said. Among the important features for homesteaders are good roads, domestic water supply from safe sources, rural postal routes, and first, last and all the time, good roads. The organization, cooperation and development of the community spirit should be encouraged among the homesteaders.

Given financial support by the banks, rural credit associations, and rural insurance.

The importance of a thorough study of the problem from many angles was emphasized by Krauss. One of the features which should be absolutely eliminated is the fake homesteading, the homesteading speculator, to make a room for the honest man who wants to make a living by small farming.

The sum of $519 has been collected from generous local firms by the guava jelly committee headed by D. G. May. The paper cups are being filled and will be sent away to the soldiers as soon as the cartons in which they are packed arrive from the mainland.

GUAVAS SUBJECT OF MAGAZINE ARTICLE

"Guavas of the Hawaiian Islands" is the title of a comprehensive article in the November issue of the Torrey Botanical Club Bulletin (New York) by Prof. Vaughan MacCaughy, of the College of Hawaii. It is the first detailed account of the Hawaiian guavas that has ever been published.

The seven kinds that have been introduced into the Hawaiian Islands are:

The common yellow guava, the sweet red guava, the white lemon guava, the Wai-ai guava, the Guisano guava, the red strawberry guava, and the yellow strawberry guava.

The value of the guavas as food, as firewood, as a source of charcoal, as honey plants, and as land covers is treated in detail, followed by descriptions of all of the Hawaiian forms. The horticultural importance of the guavas is emphasized, and the fruits of the rarer kinds are fully described.

This article is one of a series by Professor MacCaughy now appearing in mainland and English botanical magazines, and dealing with Hawaii's fruits, plants and trees.

Seven Yeomanettes Serve Uncle Sam In Wireless Office

Women of Honolulu Show Their Loyalty By Enlisting In the Navy and Are Doing Much To Help the Country Win the War

Not all who are endeavoring to show their loyalty to their country and enlisting in the army and navy to "do their bit" are men, for many young women of Honolulu are now serving their country in the capacity of yeomen in the navy, and are regularly enlisted for the period of the war. According to their superior officers they are doing splendid work for Uncle Sam, fit in well with the naval system and are extremely amenable to naval routine.

Seven women who have enlisted for the war in the navy are now on duty at the local naval wireless office and at the cable office, all members of the clerical staff of Commodore Dennis H. Mahan, U. S. N., in charge of the censorship bureau.

At the beginning of the war it was expected that all women yeomen would wear uniforms, consisting of sailor blouse or petty officer's tunic, and white skirt, to match the blouse or tunic, and cap. No orders have yet been received at the naval station to outfit them, although at stations on the Atlantic coast such uniforms have been in use for months.

The latest addition to the yeomanette force at the naval wireless office is Miss Alexandrina J. Munro, yeoman third class, who is the commodore's stenographer. She was commissioned on Tuesday. The others at the office are Miss Florence E. Nauman, chief yeoman; Mrs. Edith B. Ashley, yeoman first class; Miss Florence K. Abbey, yeoman first class; Mrs. Mabel R. Taylor, yeoman second class; Miss Edith Cottrell, yeoman second class; Mrs. Bessie L. McIlree, yeoman third class.

The average Honolulu woman who passes the naval wireless office on Fort Street has little conception of the hive of industry which is the unseen part of the wireless activity. The office is much like a bottle, with the front portion the neck of the bottle. There the public is received, where it writes its messages and pays its money and gets its receipt, and also receives censored messages and pays more money; and also where the telegraph operators are located. The rattle of the telegraph keys goes on night and day, for Honolulu is a busy wireless center these war days.

But that is the smallest part of the job. Funds are now being collected for the maintenance of the Ad Club bed at Leahi Home this year.

Putting the Sense in Censorship

There is always an officer in the front of the office, who receives the messages after they have been accepted at the counter, and who uses his blue pencil freely. Censorship is real censorship at this office, and messages pass through many hands before the telegraph operator shoots the messages over the wires to Kahuku or Heia, where the Marconi and Federal wireless plants, respectively, are located, for transmission across the sea to the Coast, to ships and other distant lands.

The yeomanette force at Pearl Harbor naval station has also been effective in its work, and has the additional quality of having released a number of men for active service.

BANANA GROWERS TROUBLED

Banana shippers have no relief in sight and say that conditions are growing steadily worse. Ordinarily the shipments amount to about 25,000 bunches a month but in the past month there have been practically no shipments. Prospects for shipments in the immediate future are not bright.

HILO RUNNERS URGED TO KEEP BACON HOME

Second City Athletes Expect To Make Good Time

HILO, December 17.—Sunday afternoon, five of the local runners went out over the last relay of the Kilauea-Hilo Relay Race and A. P. Helmsch slipped close upon two minutes off the time put up the previous week, finishing as though he was running a hundred-yard dash. The other runners were A. Carter, W. Carter, Cabrini and M. Carvalho, but the latter failed to complete the course, while the two Carters and Cabrini made comparatively poor time.

The lads were not pushed, consequently they did not exert themselves, but the real test is to be made next Sunday when the full team will cover the entire distance, starting from the Volcano House and running in relays to Moohau Park. The time put up on this occasion will be a splendid guide as to what the boys will do on the day of the race.

It is expected that sufficient other runners will be out to make two teams and make something of a race of it, for Hilo certainly needs two teams, if Honolulu is to send up five teams, as is promised. For Hilo to be represented by only one team is a disgrace to Hilo, with the material on hand and the advantages to train over the actual course, and this is being commented upon by the Honolulu runners. There are still three weeks in which to train, which should be sufficient if the necessary spirit is not lacking.

HILO WAKES UP, JOSH GAME FIXED

High Moguls of Second City To Set Aside Dignity For Sweet Charity

HILO, December 17.—The outcome of the challenge issued by the tax officials to the supervisors, et al., is that the county officials, appreciating the feelings of patriotism which prompted the issuance of the "presumptuous and audacious" challenge, have so far forgotten themselves as to lower their dignity to the point which will permit them to associate with the challengers. Hence, the following reply has been written:

Honorable O. T. Shipman, Assessor, III Taxation Division, Territory of Hawaii, also Manager, Tax Department, County of Hawaii, Baseball Team, Hilo, Hawaii.

Greetings:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your presumptuous and audacious challenge to a game of baseball between a team composed of the tax officials and one composed of the officials of the county. On first thought the suggestion was offered that your team should first go and get a reputation, and to treat your challenge to mortal combat as a mere scrap of paper. However, as the Red Cross is to be benefited by our proposed set-to, it is with a feeling of considerable consideration that we consent to meet you on the field of battle.

Your challenge is, therefore, accepted.

The intimation contained in your challenge that it be played to a finish, is particularly rich and apt, for it will be your finish.

It has been suggested, and I offer the same for what it is worth, that a keg of beer be placed near third base, so that any one fortunate enough to reach the hot corner would be rewarded by an intimate association with the contents of said keg.

You might not agree to the above proposition, for many of our team feel that not one of your team will see, let alone smell, second base.

The following is our tentative lineup:

Catcher, Charles H. Swain; pitcher, Samuel M. Spencer; first base, A. M. Cabrini; second base, Julian R. Yates; third base, E. H. Lyman; shortstop, William H. Beers; fielders, A. A. Hapai, A. A. Akina, James Aki; subs, Hulo Todd and Samuel Kaubane.

I hope that the galaxy of stars mentioned will not cause any chills in your pedal extremities. The affairs of our team are in the capable hands of W. H. Beers, who will meet you and arrange as to details.

Yours until the fateful day.

Samuel Kaubane, Chairman and Executive Officer, Board of Supervisors, County of Hawaii.

The date for the game has not yet been fixed, but it is hoped that before the current week has expired all preliminary plans will have been settled and that tickets will be on sale or front seats from which to view his history-making game.

Fanny Durack Will Swim Here Coming September

Minna Wylie, Another Australian Mermaid Will Also Be Seen in Meet

WILL T. Rawlins received a letter yesterday morning from William Umack, the well known California sport authority, telling him that Miss Fanny Durack and Minna Wylie, another well known mermaid, would leave Australia on May 15 and would reach Honolulu May 28, on their way to San Francisco.

The Island Continent mermaids are scheduled to appear in swimming races and exhibitions in a number of the California pleasure and athletic resorts during June, July and August.

Umack asked Rawlins, in his letter, if Honolulu would be able to take care of the two swimmers for the local September A. A. U. aquatic meet. They will return here from the Coast in ample time to be in condition to compete in Honolulu's greatest mid-year meet.

"I will write Umack that the girls may come along and Honolulu will most assuredly look after them," W. T. Rawlins, president of the Hawaiian Society of the A. A. U., said yesterday. "The presence of the two expert swimmers alone will insure the success of the meet."
